

February Students of the Month – Honesty

Kindergarten - Mrs. Heuer. Bailey Binek is the student of the month in Mrs. Heuer's kindergarten class for the theme of honesty. Bailey shows honesty in many ways at school. She has developed some good relationships because she tries to do what is right and treats others respectfully. You can tell that she cares about her classmates and teachers in her actions and words. She is honest about needing help and feels comfortable asking for help when needed. She always wants to do her best! Bailey has worked hard this year and should be proud of her accomplishments! Congratulations, Bailey!

Kindergarten - Miss Miller. Michael Donner is the student of the month in Miss Miller's class! Michael comes to school excited to learn and share stories with peers. He wants his listeners to understand his stories and ensures he tells them with honesty. He treats his peers with kindness and respect while trying to do the right thing. He cares about his peers and makes sure he says the right thing; one knows this by seeing him put thought into what he is about to say and correcting himself when he's wrong. He is honest about needing help and isn't afraid to ask. Michael is a lot of fun to have in our class as an honest student! Congratulations Michael!

Grade One - Mrs. Adams. Orion Thom is the Student of the Month In Mrs. Adams' Classroom. Orion practices honesty daily by being truthful in what he says and does in the classroom. He takes ownership of his actions and tells the truth when problem solving. Keep up the great work Orion!

Grade One - Mrs. Pavlenko. I would like to nominate JJ Buckingham for my February Student of the Month. JJ consistently works hard, sharing his kindness and positivity with others. He comes to school everyday with a smile on his face, prepared and ready to learn, often sharing laughter and a bit of silliness with his friends and teachers throughout the day. He is honest in everything he does, whether it's about something that happened at recess with his peers, completing his work with his best effort, or even sharing what his favorite subject is in school (Math!). JJ is also very helpful and respectful-if he is given a job to do, no matter how challenging, he has learned to give it his all! Finally, JJ uses friendly and encouraging words with his classmates and teachers, and enjoys sharing and celebrating their accomplishments, big and small, as well as his own. I have loved having JJ in my class and look forward to the rest of the school year together. Keep up the great work!

Grade Two - Mrs. Carlson. February's theme of honesty has been shown by Jayden Spike many times in the classroom. Jayden is straightforward and always willing to tell the truth, even when it might be difficult. He continues to show that he lives truthfully in his words and actions. I am excited to call Jayden our student of the month for February.

Grade Two - Mrs. Eastling. I nominate Noah Samuels for student of the month. He shows honesty throughout the day. He is honest in his work that he completes. He is a great leader on days I have subs because he can be counted on to help with daily activities. Noah is honest with himself in how he feels and can find effective ways to deal with his emotions. Noah is a great friend because he is kind, helpful, and always honest! Great job, Noah!

Grade Two - Mrs. LaMott. Congratulations to Avery Devries for being selected student of the month from Mrs. LaMott's classroom! Avery has been honest and trustworthy all year long. She can help others follow our routines because she knows the expectations. Avery is straightforward and always willing to tell the truth, even when it might be difficult. She continues to show that she lives truthfully in her words and actions. Congratulations Avery and keep up the good work! :)

Grade Three - Mrs. Wadman. Elesai Gorlov has shown February's theme of honesty in many different ways. Elesai consistently tells the truth and takes responsibility for his actions, even when it might be difficult. I have noticed that he is a trustworthy member of our classroom and sets a positive example for others. He shows integrity by doing the right thing when no one is watching and by being fair and respectful to his classmates. Elesai continues to grow in both his learning and his character, and it has been wonderful to see his confidence shine this year. I am so proud to name Elesai Student of the Month for February!

Grade Four - Mrs. Gallagher. The February student of the month for Mrs. Gallagher's class is Hannah Marquette This month's theme is honesty. Hannah shows honesty in her daily actions and kind words. She also has many other positive character traits. Friends and teachers alike will tell you that Hannah is polite, trustworthy, and dependable. She was even elected as a student council representative. Hannah is an eager learner and has the ability to think deeply so as to always put her best foot forward. She participates appropriately in class and is a cooperative partner. Hannah is a great role model for other students and we are glad to have her in our class. Congratulations Hannah!

Grade Four - Mr. Goudy. Brinley Jobe is the student of the month for February. He displays tremendous self control, participates on a regular basis, and is putting forth a lot of effort into his work. I can trust Brinley with any task that I give him. He responds well to direction from adults and is respectful. Other students enjoy being around Brinley as well. He has a charisma that others seem to be drawn to and I like that he doesn't push anyone away. He is a well rounded individual that can do big things in the future! Congrats Brinley!
