Northome High School students recognized for their skills at D L High School Young Artists and Writers Competition

DETROIT LAKES, MN - On Friday, March 22, the Detroit Lakes American Indian Education Department's Young Artists and Young Writers Competition brought together talented students from various schools to showcase their creativity and literary prowess. Held at Detroit Lakes High School, the event was a celebration of indigenous artistry and storytelling.

Among the participants were students from Northome School, who left a remarkable imprint on the competition. Freshman Kendra Rosebear's poignant narrative about her artist grandfather secured an Honorable Mention.

Fellow freshman Ali Hosley demonstrated exceptional skill with her painting on glass, earning a well-deserved second place. Adding to the triumph, freshman Kyra Butcher clinched two coveted first place ribbons for her outstanding artwork.

Accompanying the triumphant students was Northome School's American Indian Education Coordinator, Stephanie Skaret, who provided guidance and support throughout the program. Reflecting on their achievements, Skaret expressed pride, stating, "They did a great job; it was a fun experience." She further remarked that the students are eagerly anticipating the next year's competition, already brimming with ideas and enthusiasm.

The competition served as a platform for young indigenous talents to shine, fostering a sense of community and empowerment among participants. Their creativity and dedication underscored the importance of nurturing artistic expression and storytelling within the Native American youth community.

As the event concluded, participants and attendees alike departed with a renewed appreciation for the rich cultural heritage and creative ingenuity of Indigenous artists and writers. With hopes high and aspirations soaring, the stage is set for another inspiring showcase of talent at next year's competition.

School braces for solar eclipse

By Jim Schneider

April 8 is the date of the next solar eclipse visible in Minnesota. While we won't get a total eclipse, we still get to encounter a pretty spectacular phenomenon. At the peak, 70.3% of the sun will be blocked by the moon.

I remember back when I was in sixth grade, we were encouraged to make our own safe method to view the upcoming solar eclipse. We didn't have solar viewing glasses or the Internet. I watched a television show on how to make a solar eclipse viewer. It was February, so thankfully we were able to view the eclipse from our classroom.

To safely watch a solar eclipse, you need to protect your eyes. So here is a quick Public Safety Announcement. It is NOT safe to look at an eclipse with unshielded eyes. Sunglasses are NOT enough. Using your cell phone is NOT good enough. Here are some good options from preventblindness.org: solar viewing glasses, unscratched number 14 welding glass, or use your own unscratched sheet of mylar to create a viewing box.

Northome School staff and students are busy getting ready for this rare occurrence. Several elementary groups, staff, and the science club are preparing to do some educating and viewing that day. The public is invited out to the school to participate in the event.

All people viewing the eclipse will be provided a pair of solar viewing glasses. The public is invited out for a sun-themed lunch (see Page 2 for details) and then can take in the sight, meander between learning and activity stations, and spend some time with our wonderful students.

An event like this is fairly rare. Following the 1979 viewing, it wasn't until 2017, when a partial eclipse was about 80% complete, reached Minnesota. Most people in the state missed it as the state was mostly blanketed in clouds. (I was able to watch about the first 10 minutes of the eclipse in Northome before the clouds obscured the rest of the event.)

The next partial eclipse that will be similar to this will be Jan. 14, 2029 when it will be just under 70%. This is an unusually short time. The next total eclipse for Minnesota is calculated to be in 2099.

Knowledge is Power! Where will it take you?

A Message from Ms. MacKenzie Lehn

It's almost time for the MCA's

It's almost that time of year again for students to take the Minnesota Comprehensive Assessments (MCA's). The MCA's are a set of statewide tests given to students in Minnesota.

The purpose of these tests is to measure student progress in relation to meeting the Minnesota academic standards in addition to meeting state legislation and federal requirements. The information gathered is used to improve classroom teaching and learning.

Students begin taking these assessments in third grade in the areas of reading, math and science. This year, we plan to begin the MCA's the week of April 11th and hopefully wrap them up the week of May 3.

With students each having their own Chromebook, we should be able to complete the tests within the regular classrooms. More detailed information will be provided to families in the near future.

Tips to be successful on the MCA's:

Get plenty of sleep Eat a healthy breakfast Dress comfortably Pace yourself Believe in yourself!

Survivor is Comina!

With MCA's around the corner, you know what that means... time for SURVIVOR! Grades 7-12 will once again participate and compete in Survivor: Northome Edition. Each event and challenge will help to prepare and motivate our students for the MCA's! The events will begin March 25th and continue throughout the month. This is a time for students to use teamwork and knowledge to be the winners of Survivor!

Spring Fest/ Spring Con-

Our Spring Fest and elementary Spring concert will be looking a bit different this year due to some staffing changes. We will not be holding our usual spring fest with Kelliher this year nor having our elementary spring concert.

However... we will still be celebrating the wonderful achievements of our students. We are planning to hold a "Spotlight," night where students have the opportunity to showcase their work.

Each class will be working on a project to present to their families and friends. We will also hold our annual spring carnival that evening in one of our gyms where families can come play games, have dinner and spend time with friends. We will announce the date for this event as soon as it is determined. We are excited to see all of you there!

It's a Solar Eclipse!

On April 8, 2024, a total solar eclipse will cross North America, passing over Mexico, the United States, and Canada. A total solar eclipse happens when the Moon passes between the Sun and Earth, completely blocking the face of the Sun

Northome students are inviting the community to come celebrate this special event with us. We will have a picnic lunch from 12:10-12:45 with a program to follow led by our solar eclipse experts.

Crafts, games and snack stations will also be set up for everyone to enjoy. Safety glasses will be provided to all students, staff and guests. If you are interested in joining in on the fun, please RSVP to Nikki Adegun by Wednesday, April 3rd at 218-897-5275 ext 100. We hope to see all of you there!

Stay tuned! Information about summer school will be coming soon.

CHARACTER CHALLENGE

By Mariah Hanson The Mustang Express

On Tuesday, March 19, Northome High School had Travis Guida come in to present his program called Character Challenge which is based off of his Character Challenge Course in Park Rapids, Minn. Their programs connect students in hands-on activities, team focused events, and provide engaging and motivational stories.

I really enjoyed it and made a point to stop him afterwards to tell him so. Trav, as he asked us to call him, led the challenges while a rapper named Ron spoke to us about how to overcome difficulties. They were the two very kind men who talked to us. When they were not talking, we played little games, challenges, and even rapped. In my opinion it was very interesting.

They both talked about how, sometimes in life we don't see the bigger picture, and that sometimes we need to take a step back to see it. The guys explained that because neither of them had good father figures in life, they listened to what everyone else told them to be. Eventually, they discovered that they had to be themselves to find out where they belonged in life. In life, the only way that you can change is if you change yourself. No one else can change you; and no one can help you unless you let them.

As we learned about these guys' lives, we saw how even though bad things happen, we choose our attitudes and how we move on in life. They talked about alcohol and how it can hurt families; abandonment and how it can lead to bad choices.

Trav was talking to us about his childhood and how his dad was an alcoholic and just wasn't the best. He was mad at his dad, until he grew older and learned that his father became the head of his house when he was only 16 because his dad was an alcoholic that abandoned his mother with nine kids to raise. He didn't know that about him, and he had to see through his dad's eyes on how that made his dad feel.

These messages really resonated with me, and I believe were good for many students to hear. They may not have meant a lot to everyone there that day, but it meant a lot to me and other students.

I think what these two men do is really cool; I really appreciate them coming to our small school and sharing. As they mixed up the age groups for activities, they forced us to interact with other kids at Northome School that we don't talk to every day.

We also had to work together on all the challenges. In one, we all had to hold a paper plate by one finger and lower it to the floor. We had to work together to bring it to the floor without any of us every letting go.

Another had us share a few things about ourselves, write about people we look up too, list a team that we are on, and something that stops us in life.

In one challenge, three of us formed a triangle by placing our hands on each other's shoulders. Two of us in the triangle had to protect the third person from the tagger, the fourth person on the outside of the group. We learned how important it is to have a couple of friends.

Then there was the challenge where we had sync our paces in a line so that all in the group crossed the finish line at the same time. This took a lot of communication.

These multiple little challenges had a deeper meaning behind them. We had to communicate to get the task done. We had to depend on each other. We had to support each other. No one else can change you; and no one can help you unless you let them.

Some students may have thought that some of the challenges were a little silly, but we laughed and we had fun together with people that we may not talk to every day.

Whatever you students thought of that whole experience is a result of how you participated. You might have had fun, you might have not, but it's all in what you want to make it. I think that even though some may not admit it, what those two did meant something to them.

It may have helped you see you're not alone, it may have inspired you to change things, maybe even treat yourself and others differently.

Tousignant joins staff

By Cloey Buenetemeier The Mustang Express

Tousignant lived in the Twin Cities before moving to Northern Minnesota. He loved hunting and fishing in Northern Minnesota, so he moved to Effie where he loves living and enjoys the Hwy 1 commute everyday.

He is also impressed with the northern community, especially the excellent food establishments.

Superintendent Jeremy Tammi said, "Please welcome Roger Tousignant to our Northome School family.

Northome High School students created a stainedglass effect when they took old picture frames and created glass paintings using colored glue as faux leading. Math teacher Mrs. LeAnn Bolhous suggested I should ask readers to match cars in the parking lot to their owners in the school.

Below are the cars I knew and took pictures of, and to the right are their owners.

Family camping trips a good tradition

By Mariah Hanson The Mustang Express

Every year when I was younger, my dad's side of the family and I used to go camping at Pike Bay, in Cass Lake. Campers upon campers and tents upon tents filled the campground. Everyone used to go.

That was the one time besides holidays that we got to see most of our family. It was just so much fun riding our bikes down the road passing our family's campsites all placed in a row, going back and forth between campers.

We used to have different family camping traditions. One of them was that we would make homemade ice cream after we were all done swimming; it was a nice little treat on a hot summer day. We used a big bag of ice, a small bag inside of it with half and half, sugar, and vanilla. Then we would shake it until it turned into ice cream

Another involved swimming. Each year, someone swam across the whole lake. My brother and I used to do that with one of our cousins or uncles (except I'm pretty sure we didn't do that on Pike Bay. Read on and you will see why).

We would swim, ride four wheeler, ride bikes, go fishing on this trail that was far away from our campsite. We would even go frog hunting at night, but that's a whole different story that ended up with my sister crying. We would play ghost and the graveyard when it started to get dark.

My dad got this flint and steel, and used to make fire starters out of charred shirts. He taught me and my siblings how to start a fire. We were always excited to do that.

I love camping because you make so many memories and have lots of stories to tell. For example, one time we played ghost and the graveyard, and I ran into a parked car; Dalton ran into a bar and hit his head.

mixed baking soda and some other stuff, I can't remember, and put it all over our bodies, and it actually worked.

We were so thankful for this because we still got to camp -- but sadly, we couldn't swim anymore unless we wanted to itch again. After that we didn't go to Pike Bay anymore because people said the year after that there still was swim-

My brother and I lay in the camper for a few hours trying not to scratch, but we couldn't stop.

Out of all my camping stories, the one that I will always remember is the time that my brother and I got swimmer's itch. We were having an awesome time camping like always until we went swimming and both got swimmer's itch.

The first two days we were camping, it was really windy and a little too cold to go swimming. The next day, it was sunny, and we all wanted to go swimming. At the time, my sister didn't want to, so it was just me, my brother, and my cousins.

At first we thought that we got poison ivy but soon realized that the only people who had it were the kids who swam.

My brother and I lay in the camper for a few hours trying not to scratch, but we couldn't stop. It was a good thing that my aunt came for a little trip and knew how to take care of swimmer's itch. She mers' itch in that lake.

We didn't want to take our chances so we went to a different campground and still had lots of fun. I don't remember what this campground was called but I do know that a bonus of this one was that there were trails all over the place. Our family took our four wheelers, and dirt bikes and rode for hours.

It didn't matter what campground our family chose each summer; we always knew how to have fun.

Now everyone is grown up so we stopped doing that. I miss it. I hope that someday when I'm older, I can take my family camping so that my children, too, can make good memories just like me.

Well, except maybe for the itching memory.
