Gender Equity and Inclusion in Athletics on Campus: Modern Applications of Title IX

In 1972, the Title IX of the Education Amendments was passed by congress to eliminate discrimination based on sex in education programs. Over the last 50 years, schools and institutions have seen a shift in opportunities across their programs for students who identify as women, transgender, and non-binary as a direct result. This session will provide an overview of the major historical advancements for sex/gender equity in education interwoven with the effects of the ever-changing legal landscape and end with an eye towards the future for creating places of belonging for all students.

PRESENTATIONS

Session 1

DEI and Sports: How We Can Initiate Change

Lamar Reddicks, Milton Academy

Grace Dzindolet, Graduate Student, Springfield College

Lily Gould (they/he/she), Undergraduate Senior, Springfield College

Nelson Mandela once said, 'Sport has the Power to Change the World'. We will take a look at how actions in sports have started influence how we look at things in our everyday lives. Sports can be used to unite people, to create social inclusion, or to put a spotlight on social justice topics. We will take a look and see just how powerful sports can really be.

Middle School Athletic Directors

Amber Kuntz, Beaver Country Day School

Rob Feingold, Fay School

This session is an opportunity for Middle School Athletic Directors to gather and discuss pertinent issues faced at the middle school level. Most notably, this is a time to discuss middle school sport-specific rule changes, areas of concern as we continue to return to our new normal, and other relevant topics of the day. If you have agenda items you would like to be discussed by the group; please send them to Rob or Amber.

New Athletic Directors

Mark Conroy, Williston Northampton School

George Tahan, Belmont Hill School

New athletic directors to NEPSAC! Whether you are an athletic director in your first year or a new athletic director to NEPSAC, this session is intended to provide athletic directors with an opportunity to learn more about their responsibilities as members of NEPSAC. This is a Q and A session led by two former NEPSAC presidents who continue to serve on the Executive Board.

Sessions 2 and 3

Coaching the Whole Human – Helping Athletes Develop Beyond the Courts, Fields, and Ice

Billy Thom, LMSW, Millbrook School

This breakout session will offer ADs opportunities to think about the ways in which values and holistic-minded education might inform, strengthen, and deepen the work that their departments and their coaches work with young people in their schools. Billy's goal will be to model the usage of concrete techniques and activities aimed towards value development and understanding the athlete beyond their in-competition production that ADs will be able to bring back to their departments and coaching staffs.

Implementing a Toolkit for Gender Inclusive Culture in Athletics

Michelle Lee Scecina, Springfield College

Erin Leeper, Springfield College

Grace Dzindolet, Graduate Student, Springfield College

Lily Gould (they/he/she), Undergraduate Senior, Springfield College

Building on the keynote session, join the presenters to discuss a toolkit for implementing gender inclusive cultures in your athletics departments. Participants will be invited to brainstorm ideas for the future of gender expression to best support their athletes of all identities and hear from the presenters on what has worked at their institution.

Martin William Souders Memorial Award

DEREK J. GREEN

Kingswood Oxford School '81

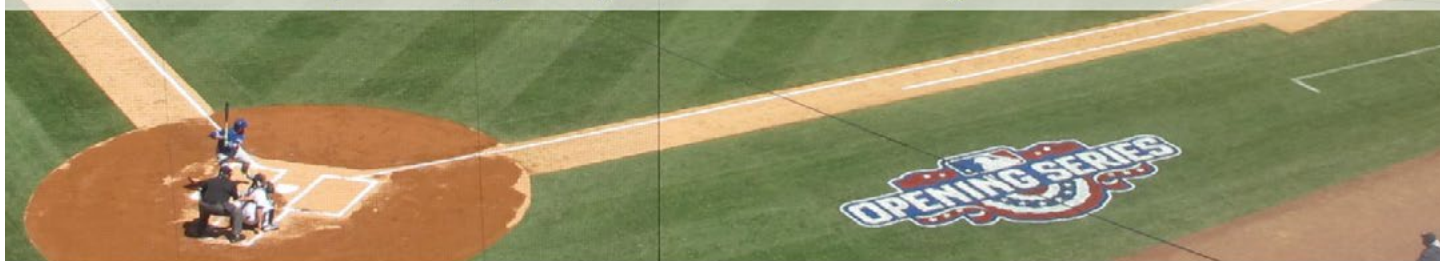

Derek Green is an alumnus of Kingswood Oxford School, graduating in 1981. He was a four-year varsity letter winner in three sports. He played football for the legendary KO Coach Joel Lorden, who taught him the meaning of resilience, and learned determination during his time on the wrestling team. He served as the captain of the track team in his junior and senior years and held the record for the 200 meters for four years and the 100 meters for over 25 years.

He continued his education with a bachelor's degree from Tufts University in mechanical engineering, as well as two masters degrees: one in aeronautical science from Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University and the other in aerospace engineering from University of Alabama. Mr. Green started his fascinating career as an electrical engineer at Westinghouse. He then joined the United States Air Force. He was a flight commander, chief pilot, acquisition program manager, supervisor of flying, and a combat pilot during the Gulf War. His stellar field performance led him to a management position within their headquarters at the Pentagon. There he was in charge and helped supervise 15 Air Force programs with a budget of $6.3B; this included Air Force One. He also wrote Air Force policy for these programs. Later he was selected as a VIP pilot for the White House, DOD and Congress, flying out of Andrews AFB in Washington, DC. There he became commander of operational support for the 201st Airlift Group. During his 22-year Air Force career, Green was selected as an astronaut candidate in 2003 by NASA. In 2007, he left the Air Force and began his career with GE; where he was general manager of GE's Global Flight Operations Division, in managing all the global flight operations for GE. Mr. Green left GE in 2014 and is now a consultant as well as the Chief Operating Officer for Miracle Mansion. Mr. Green is a retired lieutenant colonel in the Air Force, and lives in Hopewell Junction, NY.

Brock USA

3090 Sterling Circle, Boulder, CO 80301

Brock is the nation's leading manufacturer of performance shock pads for artificial turf. Head concussions can and do occur on artificial turf. Brock's safety and performance approach will optimize your field, your investment, and reduce this serious sports injury risk to both your players and your organization. Brock also revolutionizes infill technology for artificial turf athletic fields with an engineered natural infill called BrockFill. Finally a replacement for SBR rubber is available with a cost effective and domestically sourced infill that reduces heat and performs more like natural turf. Synthetic turf systems using an alternative to the resilient SBR rubber have become more popular than ever. If you are considering doing a synthetic turf field and are also exploring multiple infill options, please consider Brock shock pads and BrockFill infill as your choice to support these systems. Brock is a proud provider of numerous fields in the New England area including several NEPSAC schools. Please come by our booth at the show to find out more about how to build a better field and visit us at www.BrockUSA.com. We are also available to review your project and present all of the latest safety and infill information, so feel free to contact the representative below to set up an appointment. BROCK - Firmer. COLDTUB™

198 Route 28, West Harwich, MA 02671

COLDTUB™ designs and manufactures advanced hydrotherapy tubs for professional and amateur athletes as well as residential use. Our flagship product, the POLARPOOL® COLDTUB™ was inspired by Don DelNegro, head Athletic Trainer for the Boston Bruins hockey team, as he searched for a better alternative to common steel whirlpools for his athletes. Don, like many other trainers, was concerned about the safety, sanitation, size, chemical maintenance, and set up time required by traditional cold water tanks. Our paths crossed and visions joined to create the solution. The POLARPOOL® COLDTUB™ was created and has exploded onto the professional and collegiate athletic training scene. As a response to many requests for larger, smaller and more portable units we have added the Icecube Kart, Icepod, Icepod PLUS, Icebox, Polarplunge and Iceberg to our line-up. COLDTUB™ has a unit for almost every application.

HOW NEPSAC BEGAN

December 7, 1941, was a quiet Sunday. For New England independent schools the date fell in that relaxed time between athletic seasons with only examinations and Christmas holidays in the offing. The dramatic and shocking report of the bombing of Pearl Harbor, as carried on the radio, shattered the mood of the day and the season so drastically that it would be years before a comparable atmosphere would be recaptured. The news fell with special poignancy upon boys' schools. As faculty met their students for dinner that night or in their classes the next morning, they were profoundly aware that the news they had so recently heard had altered irrevocably the lives and futures of their students and of their younger colleagues.

School administrations turned at once to the great question as to how they best could prepare their students for the ordeals which these young men were likely to face and at the same time provide the conventional education which would permit them to take their place in society after the war. Confidence in the principles of a liberal education held. Except for a general policy of speeding up the educational process, few radical changes were made. However, since training programs in the armed services put great emphasis on physical fitness, directors of athletics and coaches had special responsibilities. They too, felt that team competition provided the best incentive to physical fitness; hence interscholastic competition should continue and indeed, be augmented if possible.

The dream of business as usual did not last long. In early April of 1942 Herbert G. Stokinger, Director of Athletics at Milton Academy, saw in a Boston newspaper a summary of governmental regulations applying to bus companies. To his consternation he learned that transportation companies could no longer charter buses for athletic trips without surrendering any right to replacement tires for buses so chartered. Since this regulation was a direct and obvious threat to all interscholastic athletic competition, Stoky acted promptly. He telephoned his opposite numbers, Martin W. Souders of Exeter, Eliot T. Putnam of Noble and Greenough, and J. Leo Foley of Roxbury Latin; they all agreed to meet at Stoky's house for a consultation. The four men at that meeting were of one mind: there was an urgent need for an immediate gathering of representatives of as many schools as possible to determine whether interscholastic athletics could indeed continue, how athletic programs could be modified under the circumstances, and how best to meet the inevitable shortages of equipment which loomed in the future. At the urging of this ad hoc committee, Stoky consulted the invaluable Porter

Sargent handbook and sent out an invitation to all schools within a reasonable distance of Boston to attend a meeting at the Harvard Club on Saturday, April 11, 1942.

Twenty-three schools sent representatives to the meeting, and five other schools expressed their interest by submitting written reports on how they proposed to adapt their programs to the stringent governmental regulations necessitated by the war effort. As the moving spirit behind the gathering, Herbert Stokinger presided with Eliot Putnam acting as secretary for the meeting. After a brief statement from a representative of each school present as to how it proposed to deal with interscholastic competition, Eliot Putnam reported these general conclusions:

- A. In any change of policy, first consideration should obviously be given to the spirit in which restrictions have been imposed.
- B. Attempt to go ahead with regular schedules, canceling such long trips as demand too great an expense (train, taxis, etc.) or which seem to call on an inadvisable and unwarranted demand on private cars.
- C. Bear in mind at all times the great value of interscholastic games, both from the competitive point of view, and as a pacesetter for school morale.
- D. Proceed cautiously as regards transportation by private cars, if not covered by proper insurance.
- E. Make every effort to strengthen the intramural program in the lower classes, canceling all interscholastic competition when there is any doubt as to its advisability.

Martin Souders then remarked on what he considered to be a long-felt need for a permanent organization among the independent schools, an organization which would meet periodically for discussion, legislation, and friendly interchange of ideas. He cited the advantages enjoyed by existing college and public school organizations. His suggestion was unanimously approved, and the following officers were elected:

President	Martin W. Souders	Phillips Exeter
Vice-President	J. Leo Foley	Roxbury Latin
Vice-President	Eliot T. Putnam	Noble & Greenough
Sec.-Treasurer	Herbert G. Stokinger	Milton
