Let's Make Cookies

Mark and Art had been playing in the backyard for a long time.

"I want a snack," said Mark. "Let's go get some cookies and milk." Mark loved big, crunchy oatmeal cookies.

The boys looked in the cookie jar, but all the cookies were gone.

"Let's make some," said Mark. After all, he had watched Mom make cookies. It didn't look so hard.

Mark got a box of oatmeal from the cupboard. He got eggs from the refrigerator. Art found the big mixing bowl and a spoon.

Mark broke two eggs into the bowl. He stirred them up just like he had seen his mother do. Art had just started to put in the oatmeal when Mom came in from the garden.

"Just a minute, boys," Mom said. "You need a recipe to make good oatmeal cookies. I'll get it for you. You will need a few more ingredients too."

"What's a recipe?" asked Art. "And what are ingredients?"

"A recipe tells you how to make something," explained Mom.

"Ingredients are the things you use to make things to eat."

Mom read the recipe as the boys measured and mixed the dough. When the cookies were in the oven, they all helped clean up the messy kitchen.

"Making cookies is hard work!" said Art. "I think we need a snack." They each had three warm cookies and a big glass of cold milk.
