CARING

I believe I have demonstrated a caring nature in many ways. I have participated in many activities directed toward the care of others such as serving meals to people in need at a kitchen in Minneapolis and making and delivering meals to elderly people in my church. I have also done many things in my personal life that demonstrate a caring nature such as owning many pets and performing my best in academics.

I served meals at a kitchen in Minneapolis to people who needed food and shelter. I had the opportunity to have great discussions with them and care, just a bit, for them physically and emotionally. I also helped teach these people how to sew buttons back onto clothes. I have made meals for elderly people in my church. Every month I get assigned one day to provide a meal for someone who has had medical issues preventing them from making food for themselves. I have prepared full meals and delivered it to these people every month for three years.

I own many pets. I have two horses, three dogs, a cat, and four fish. All these animals have needs that I tend to. I care for each one of them by provided food, clean shelter, and fresh grooming. I also demonstrate care for my academics in the classroom. I work very hard to achieve the highest marks possible in all my courses.

In conclusion, I have a very caring nature. I believe I am a shining example of this Pillar of Character. I will continue to pursue caring roles for other people and animals. I will also continue to care for my academics.
